Dear Barney and Mark,

I just received a voice mail message from Greg Pratt of WDC McKenzie in Canada, and the Costco stores have just received a second shipment of Tight Lies, this time in master packs of 30 clubs each.

As I had mentioned in my notes from my meetings in Canada, the first shipment to Costco of 500 clubs caused a great deal of trouble up north. Luckily, WDC McKenzie was able to ask the pros and retailers to give them 60 days to correct the problem, and if things were not put right by that time, the retailers could ship their clubs back to WDC. The clubs had all sold through by the end of 60 days, so our distributors only had to deal with 10 or so returns from angry retailers.

However, during my visit and in conversations with 10 pros/retailers from across Canada, the same message came through. Taylor Made, Ping and Callaway all faced Costco/Price club trans-shipping their products into Canada, and each company ended up giving the retailers the right to match the Costco prices when needed. These manufacturers would then make up the difference in lost profit to the retailers with no charge products. The opinion across Canada is that any major golf manufacturer would have to put in place similar programs or they would have massive returns. And Adams Golf is seen as a major manufacturer.

I would like permission to put such a plan in action in Canada immediately. My notes from my Canadian meetings have the details, and I can send across another copy if need be. I will call the office later this afternoon to review this fax and to answer any questions that you may have. If we do not take some positive action quickly, Adams Golf stands to lose most of the goodwill we have built in Canada, and see the 15,000 clubs that McKenzie is forecasting for sales through the end of the year disappear.

Regards,

Chris Beebe

RE: The Costco Problem

Date: June 8, 1998

Total Pages -X2

Dear Ryan, Dave and Greg,

It was good to speak with at least two of you today (Dave was too busy flirting with Pamela!). I did have the chance to speak with Barney and he said that we should do what has to be done to keep our sales strong and our reputation

As other major manufacturers have implemented a price matching policy when faced with Costco's practice of price slashing, Adams Golf feels that we must follow suit. Therefore, Adams Golf will provide credit in the form of no charge products to the customer. The program should be run as follows:

- Your customers must be split into two groups, those that are affected by Costco's pricing and those that are not. This policy only applies to those that are in close enough in proximity to be impacted negatively by Costco's policy. WDC will create these criteria.
- Each retailer in this group should be divided into one of three groups: those selling the product at $329, those selling at $315 and those selling at $300 (change these price categories if prices have fallen since my visit).
- For each sale that the retailer must match the Costco price, a credit of $50, $65 or $79 will be given, depending upon which category the retailer falls under. These credits will be accumulated until they match the wholesale price ($235) of a Tight Lies club.
- For each club that WDC Mackenzie provides as credit, Adams Golf will replace at no charge, providing there is suitable paperwork to back up the credit claims.
- To make this easier to handle, WDC should state that the credit clubs will be "X degree Tight Lies". This would eliminate the retailers all asking for different clubs, simplifying the process and minimizing possible stocking and shipping problems.
- A retailer must provide a copy of the invoice for each sale that must be discounted to match the Costco price. No invoice copy, no credit.
- For those retailers who WDC feels might abuse the system, you can either A) watch them carefully or B) decide what proportion of their stock will be affected by the Costco pricing and provide the no charge clubs up front. There are benefits to each method.
- WDC Mackenzie will keep all invoice copies and account for all clubs given at no charge. Adams Golf will provide replacement clubs for those given as credit. Once this policy has ended, any "fractional credits" should be given to the retailer in the form of a lower

ADAMS GOLF

- price on a club. All these fractional credits would then be combined by WDC and Adams will provide no charge clubs to match the total.
- This policy can not be advertised or displayed in any fashion by the retailer, nor can the Costco price be advertised or displayed. The price matching policy should only be brought up if the customer objects to paying the standard store pricing due to Costco's lower pricing.
 - This policy will remain in effect until the stock of Costco products is too low to realistically impact the Tight Lies selling price. WDC Mackenzie will make this determination.

This was done rather late at night, but should cover the policy as we discussed over the phone. Please call me tomorrow morning to review this and let me know if there are any questions, suggestions or errors made by me.

Best regards,

Chris Beebe

Re: Customer Returns

Thank you for bringing the recent returned order of King Par and Dunham's canceled order to my attention. Here are my thoughts on the subject.

First, with King Par, they refused their order even though we have signed PO's on their order forms. The reason, I believe, is that we called them to task this week for trans-shipping to a retailer in Massachusetts named MVP Sports who are selling our club for $179 and advertising that price in the newspaper. We cannot allow trans-shipment of our clubs. We should be credited with taking a long-term Adams view on the trans-shipment issue.

Second, Dunham's had a solid order with us, but at the last minute, through us a curve ball by requiring us to sign a consignment agreement. This was to be their first order or consequence and I think they tried to make us fold on terms with the clubs on the shipping dock. We, as a sales department, stepped up and said no way. Dick, that's good stuff on our part, not bad. Again, we put the company first.

As for future orders, here is my plan. You come up with a order size you would like to see us have more documentation on besides the normal company PO. Let's say it's 500 clubs- you pick the amount. For any order over this amount of clubs, we will send to that customer, up front, a document that reconfirms the following: Order Quantities, Price, Terms, Delivery Date and Method. We will include sections on our trans-shipment policy, pricing policy and return policy. They will be REQUIRED to sign the document and return it, BEFORE we process their order. You should be aware that in our industry return policies are ignored- I don't see that changing any time soon. I've have been over this once before with Barney.

Remember, to implement this will require extra steps which can have an effect on slowing down the machine. I would be fiscally irresponsible if I did not point this out. The document needs to be drafted by an attorney. Would you like to suggest one or take ownership of getting this done? Either way is OK with me.

Lastly, I will address Jay and all of our sales staff on the effect of returned or changed orders. You make a very valid point on the problems it causes. Please know how you would like me to proceed.

Civil Action No. 99-371-KAJ

DECLARATION OF MARK WOODRICH

I, Mark Woodrich, declare as follows:

1. I am currently a buyer of office furniture at Costco Wholesale Corporation ("Costco") and have personal knowledge of the facts set forth here. During the time period January 1998 through 2001, I served as the sporting goods buyer for National Distributors ("National"), a subsidiary of Costco that is responsible for purchasing merchandise on behalf of Costco and its subsidiaries in the United States and Canada and supervising its distribution to Costco warehouses for sale to the public. While a sporting goods buyer, I was responsible for purchasing sports equipment and other material on behalf of Costco and supervising its distribution to Costco warehouses for sale. As part of our responsibilities, I and other buyers routinely track each purchase and sale of merchandise and as a result I am familiar with Costco's database and systems for storing and archiving such information.

2. The attached documents are compilations of purchase and sales data collected for the time such purchases and sales were made and retained by Costco in the ordinary course of business at or around the time of each purchase or sale.

3. Exhibit A is a report titled "Adams Golf Recap 1/1/98 through 4/30/99." This document includes a list of Adams Golf products purchased by National between January 1, 1998 and April 30, 1999 and distributed to Costco, Price Club, or other Costco subsidiaries in the United States and Canada. This document contains records of all purchases that were available on our presently existing database as of July 2005, when the document was created. This information is arranged according to purchase order and includes the quantity received by Costco, the Costco item number, a description of the product, the description that appears on the National purchase order, the Costco purchase order number, the date that the National purchase order was cut, and the National purchase order number.

4. The National purchase order represents an order placed by National to our supplier to purchase a particular product and a confirmation of the issued purchase order is given to Costco. The date of the National purchase order represents the date upon which National placed the order for the product with our supplier. Costco utilizes the confirmation to issue a corresponding purchase order to National, which directs National to deliver the purchased product to a particular depot or packaging facility. The first three digits of the Costco purchase order are a code that identifies the depot or packaging facility to which the product was delivered. The next four digits represent the month and day on which the Costco purchase order was issued. The last three digits are sequential numbers assigned to the purchase orders as they are issued by that particular depot or packaging facility.

5. Costco warehouses are the facilities at which we offer products for sale to our members. Although the Costco purchase order dates are not precise, typically, the products ordered were delivered to the Costco warehouse for sale to Costco members within a few days of the date of the Costco purchase order.

6. Costco depots are facilities that store product for a number of Costco warehouses. Typically the products delivered to Costco depots would be available for sale to Costco members at neighboring warehouses within a few days of the date of receipt of the product at the depot.

7. CWI, Costco's packaging facility, takes "raw materials" purchased by National and repackages them for sale to members in our warehouses. Two packaging facilities are included in the Exhibit A report, the East Coast facility, number 196 in the Costco purchase order number, and the West Coast facility, number 910 in the Costco purchase order. In each instance, National delivered Adams golf clubs of assorted lofts to the packaging facility, which repackaged them for sale at Costco warehouses.

8. Exhibit B is a report titled "Costco Wholesale Corporation-List of Warehouses." This document is a list compiled from Costco business records of the warehouses and depots owned and operated by Costco where Adams Golf products were sold during Costco's fiscal years 1998 through 2001, grouped by region. The number at the far left is the warehouse number that corresponds to the first three digits of the Costco purchase order numbers contained in Exhibit A. The only entities identified in Exhibit A that are not also referenced in Exhibit B are the two packaging facilities identified above.

9. Exhibit C is a report titled, "Multiple Items Sales History Inquiry." This document contains information regarding Costco's retail sales of Adams golf products during fiscal years 1998 through 2001 for each region. Costco reports on a 52/53 week fiscal year, consisting of 13 four-week periods (five weeks in the thirteenth period of a 53-week year) and ending on the Sunday nearest the end of August. The report provides the revenue and number of units sold in each period and each fiscal year and the preceding year. This document contains records of all retail sales of Adams Golf products by Costco, Price Club, or other Costco subsidiaries in the United States and Canada that are available on our presently existing database or archive database as of June 2006, when the report was created.

10. Exhibit D is a true and correct copy of Costco's fiscal 1998 calendar, including each of the 13 periods of that year.

11. Exhibit E is a true and correct copy of Costco's fiscal 1999 calendar, including each of the 13 periods of that year.

12. When comparing the report of purchases in Exhibit A to the report of sales in Exhibit C, it is important to note that the clubs sent to the repackaging facilities were often assigned a different item number as individual clubs than they were assigned when packaged and offered for sale in a Costco warehouse.

13. While Costco has a long-standing policy of keeping its relationships with distributors confidential, according to our records we had no transactions for Adams Golf clubs with either Manatee Golf or King Par Corporation during fiscal years 1998 and 1999.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the above statement is true and correct.

Executed on August 1, 2006.
